

The USC Emeriti Center College invites you to participate in

	IRVING BERLIN & COLE PORTER Their Songs, Shows, Lives, and Times Spring '12 www.usc.edu/ecc
UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA ORANGE COUNTY CENTER 2300 Michelson Drive, Irvine, CA 92612 (Room F) Wednesday, March 21, 2012, 1-3 p.m.

Irving Berlin and Cole Porter are two of the major songwriters of the "Golden Age" of American popular music, and they make an interesting and colorful combination. They were completely opposite in their backgrounds, personalities, lifestyles, types of songs, and types of shows. Yet, they became close personal friends, worked together professionally, and both reached the pinnacle of their profession. We'll tell you all about it.

Lecturer
SAUL H.
JACOBS

Pianist
BOB LIPSON

Saul and Bob have performed musical programs throughout their 60-year friendship. They have been presenting a series called "The Golden Age of American Popular Music" all over Southern California since 2007. They now have 24 programs in the series and have appeared at more than 65 different venues. Both Saul and Bob are also on the faculty of the USC Emeriti Center College.

This course is an adjunct to "The Golden Age of American Popular Music" series, (www.ComposerShows.com).

SAUL H. JACOBS, writer, producer, lecturer, and performer has combined his professional background in researching and developing informational media with his lifelong interest in the musical theater, film musicals, and popular music. During his career, he created documentaries and informational films and videos for major corporations, government agencies, and educational institutions. For several years he lectured on writing at UCLA Extension and California State University at Northridge.

BOB LIPSON researches, prepares, and plays all of the music for the program. He is one of the area's outstanding pianist-interpreters of the great American standards. He performs as both soloist and accompanist throughout Southern California.
